Speaker: Mr. Deyi An, Confucianism Scholar

Reported by: Wendy Chen (陈文), March 7, 2010

It may be a sign that we have some really parents in Jacksonville. The turnout for this seminar was largest for Parent Clun. Nearly 30 or so parents attended the lecture and the class room was completely packed. Parents attentively listened to Mr. An's yet another dynamic lecture. Many diligently took notes.

MrAn. started his lecture by showing these quotes.

“人生的成功，孩子教育的成功，乃是人生最大的成功；

人生的失败，孩子教育的失败，乃是人生最大的失败。”

Mr. An said that he had noticed 3 types of people in China tends to fail in parenting: intellectuals (especially college professors), public officials and the new riches who had gained wealth very quickly). The intellectuals often overload their children with knowledge but not good at real parenting skills. Public officials like to over promise their children things that they should not. And the new riches gave whatever their children want and ignored teaching good values of life.

Mr. An said that parents need to pretend 5 things in front their children: poor (装穷), sick (装病), oblivious (装糊涂), ignorant (装无知) and weak (装弱). He also urged parents not being cheap when it comes parenting, which means parents need to spend not only money but also time and effort in parenting. Many parents complain that they are too busy to spend time with their children or very impatient with their kids but the consequences are too great if children are parented properly when they are young.
